CrawlerForge Loot Boxes GM Guide

Two ways to get a box to us

Short version: if you award boxes inside the CrawlerForge Campaign, they land on our crawlers already rolled, and when we export our crawlers everything inside comes straight into Crawler Companion. That's how I'd do it. Sending a pack file works too, but it's best for boxes where you've listed the contents yourself.

two routes from the Forge to Crawler Companion

It comes down to how CrawlerForge handles Random boxes. In a Campaign it rolls what's inside the moment you award the box. A pack file only carries the box the way you built it, so a Listed box opens fine on our end, but a Random one can only roll its Gold.

Making a box

Everything starts in the Forge. Under Crawler kit, find Loot boxes and hit Create. It asks how you want to fill it: Build by hand, where you pick every line, or Generate, which rolls it from the book's tables, your Forge and Discover and lets you reroll single lines before you save. Generate still gives you a Listed box, which matters later.

Pick the tier, give it a type (Adventurer, Boss, Pet, Savage, whatever fits), a name and a description. Then comes the step that actually matters, Contents, where you choose Listed or Random.

Listed

Hit Add content and pick what each line is:

- an Item from your Forge or Discover (or build one on the spot), with a quantity
- Gold or Misc. Junk, as a number or dice like `1d10x100`
- a Skill potion or Stat potion, either a specific one or Player's choice
- a Skill at a set Rank, like Lockpicking at 3
- Text, for anything else

Random

Random boxes roll fresh for every crawler who gets one. Draws from decides where the items come from: the tier's items (the normal option), only items with a certain tag, or rolls on one of your charts. Counts starts out "By the book", and changing any number makes it Custom. By the book, the tiers hold this much:

Tier	Items	Consumables	Skill/Stat potions	Gold
Bronze	1	2	0	1d10
Silver	1	2	1	1d10x100
Gold	1	2	1	1d6x1000
Platinum	1	2	1	2d6x1000
Legendary	2	2	1	1d10x10000
Celestial	2	2	1	none

My rule of thumb: Random if you're awarding it in the Campaign, Listed (or Generate) if you're sending a file.

Awarding boxes in the Campaign

For one of us, go to the Crawlers tab, hit Award on that crawler's card, search for the box and award it. For everyone at once, hit Award the party on the Table tab, just above the Mobs. Everyone starts ticked, so untick anyone who shouldn't get one. Random boxes roll separately for each of us.

Boxes can also go out without you clicking Award yourself. Give a Mob a Loot Box on its Loot step and the Award sheet pops up with that box already picked when it dies. A Scenario's Rewards and Items & Clues open the same sheet through Grant and Hand out. An Achievement can have a box as its reward, and a chart row that links an item or an Achievement offers Award when you roll it.

If you turn on the house rule where the GM opens saferooms (it's under Manage), awarded boxes wait until you open one, which is how the book wants it anyway. For anyone not using CrawlerForge, type their name in your roller's Label, choose Open a box… and pick the box. What's inside posts to the Feed under their name and they can add it by hand. And if a box doesn't show up on the Award sheet, check that it's saved in your Forge, or share it with the table under Manage, Sharing.

Sending boxes as a file

If someone isn't in the Campaign, or you want to hand stuff out ahead of time, put the boxes in a pack and send us the file. On a box's page hit Add to pack, or tick a few in My Creations and add them all at once. Put the items those boxes hold in the same pack so they travel together. Then open the pack from My Packs and hit Export. That saves something like `pack-floor-3-rewards.json`, which you can drop in Discord.

Exporting a single box, or a bunch of ticked rows, makes the same kind of file. Keep file boxes Listed, since a Random box in a file only rolls its Gold on our end; Generate is a good way to get random-feeling loot that still travels. A pack per floor or per boss keeps things tidy. Nobody needs CrawlerForge for this route, just Crawler Companion.

What we do on our end

We load the file into Crawler Companion's Gear tab and hit Open on the box. The Crawler Companion Player Guide has the details if you're curious.

After a Campaign award we can leave the box unopened or open it in CrawlerForge; it comes across either way. We export the crawler (Manage, then Export this Crawler), load it, and open the box. With a pack file we load it, tick the boxes, hit Add to Inventory, and open them.

Opening a box adds its items, rolls the Gold and Junk, drinks the potions (we pick for the Player's choice ones) and teaches any Skill in it.

Things to keep in mind

Boss boxes go by the boss's tier (Core p. 22):

Boss	Box
Neighborhood Boss	Bronze Boss Box
Borough Boss	Silver Boss Box
City Boss	Gold Boss Box
Province Boss	Platinum Boss Box
Country Boss	Legendary Boss Box
Floor Boss	Celestial Boss Box

A few rules from the book worth remembering. A crawler can only ever drink two Stat potions and two Skill potions (Core p. 226), and Crawler Companion warns us when we go past that, so keep potions special. Stat potions raise both Unenhanced and Enhanced. Enchanted gear gets rolls on Tables 38 to 42 by tier, from none at Bronze up to five at Celestial (Core p. 219). And boxes get opened in a saferoom; an unopened box can't be taken off a body.

Some things that help boxes come across cleanly:

- Use CrawlerForge's own effect types on items: stats (All Stats too), Skill ranks, DR, Evade, and consumables that heal or restore Mana. Crawler Companion turns those into real bonuses. Anything else (Move, extra damage, percentage stat bonuses, inherent spells) ends up as words in the item's notes.
- Keep names short and plain. The box name becomes an Inventory row, and brackets and semicolons get dropped.
- Player's choice works fine on potions. We pick when we open the box.
- We only have 20 Inventory rows, and a box that won't fit won't open, so go easy on boxes with a dozen separate items.

What Crawler Companion can't do yet is roll a Random box's items, consumables or potions (award those in the Campaign, or Generate a Listed one), or replay crafting and enchanting from a crawler file.
